THE Böhler Welding Group, a leading welding consumables manufacturer, has appointed Sea Gulf as its distributor in Qatar. A contract to this effect was signed by Anders Andersson, managing director Böhler Welding Group Middle East and Abdul Basheer, managing director Sea Gulf.

The Böhler Welding Group is part of the Voestalpine Group and has over 10 manufacturing facilities worldwide.

"The Böhler Welding Group has, by way of various mergers and acquisitions, evolved into a welding power house with six strong brands, namely Böhler, UTP, T-Put, Avesta, Soudokay and Fontargen under its umbrella. This provides its customers with a broad range of products and service-based solutions," says Andersson.

"We are very happy to be in Qatar, a country which is developing rapidly. We feel we have found the right partners in Qatar with our association with Sea Gulf. The tremendous goodwill they have generated in the market with their existing operations, and, a sound technical team looking after the new welding business augurs well for us and our customers," remarks Andersson.

"We are already one of the world leaders in pipe welding electrodes. We specialise in welding consumables for high-end applications like Cr-Mo, cryogenic, stainless steel, duplex and super duplex steels. Quality control managers and welding engineers in Qatar will have access to the latest during execution of prestigious projects in the country" adds Andersson.

"We are extremely happy to able to bring such a world class brand to the Qatar market. We are honoured that the Böhler Welding Group has chosen to associate with us," says Basheer on the occasion.

"We shall, in the near future, conduct technical seminars for quality and welding managers to update them on the latest offerings in technology and products from the Böhler group" adds C S Kartha, executive director of Sea Gulf.
